

Always In Long

Always In Long: Consecutive Bull Bars, One is Strong

Consecutive Bull Bars: One Is Big so Always In Long

Consecutive bull bars on the open with one being big (here, both were big)
and closing near its H so Always In Long
B above H of 2nd bar

Consecutive Bull Bars: One Is Big so Always In Long

Consecutive bull bars on the open with one being big
and closing near its H so Always In Long

B above H of 2nd bar

50% of strong moves on the open reverse

Always In Long: From One Exceptionally Big Bull Bar

Always In Long from 1 very big bull bar (Surprise Bar) after FOMC announcement

Next bar was doji and did not have bear body

Confirmed the bull BO (absence of bear body)

When bull bar is exceptionally big compared to other bars,

70% chance of at least MM up, especially if follow-through bar does not have bear body

Can also be bull leg in TR day

Bear trend unlikely

Always In Long means higher prices are likely before the market falls below the low of the leg

Sometimes one big bull bar is enough

But traders usually want the next bar to not have a bear body (the follow-through bar)

Big Gap Down: Always In Long on 1st Bar

Big gap down, but surprisingly big bull bar on 1st bar

Always in Long on 1st bar, even though below EMA and big gap down

Buy above bar, or buy close of bar or close of bull follow-through bar

Most traders believe Always in Long once the follow-through bar had a bull body

Always In Long: With Just One Huge Bull Bar

Extremely big bull bar so Surprise Bar
Always In Long, even though only 1 bar

B the close or above its H

Odds favor bull trend or bull leg in TR, like here

Surprise Bar: Always In Long from 1 Big Surprise Bar

60 - 70% chance of MM up based on body, and at least 2 more legs up, usually to Wedge Top

Extremely big bull bar so
Surprise Bar
Low probability event

Bears tried for 2nd Leg Bull Trap (failed BO above TR)
Good sell signal bar since close on low 4 consecutive bear bars

Closed far above bars to left so not test of top of TR
More likely successful bull BO than 2nd Leg Trap
When bull bar is unusually big, usually can buy 50% PB with limit order or on reversal up
Became bull flag in Spike and Channel bull trend day

Always In Long (AIL): Bulls Buy above Flags

Small PB Bull Trend

B High 1, High 2, and wedge bull flags

Expect only 1 – 3 bar PB

When PB or pause (inside bar),

B above bull bar closing near its H

If Always In Bulls exit,
but still Always In Long (AIL), they will buy again above bull bar in PB

Stop, trail up to below most recent major higher low (bottom of most recent leg up) after every strong bull BO

Parabolic Wedge Bottom: Then LL MTR

If Exit, but Still AIL: Buy Again above Bull Bar

Parabolic wedge top
Possible H of day

Bar closed above midpoint and not tiny bull body
Good bull bar and bad follow-through for bears

Still Always In Long

If exited, Always In Bulls buy above bull bar

Gap up and weak rally on open

(no consecutive big bull bars)

Usually enters tight TR for several hours

Okay to exit long below bear bar

Gap Down: Became Always In Long While below EMA

Always In Long: After 2 Big Bull Bars

When context is good for reversal up, 2 medium sized bull trend bars closing near their highs can reverse the market to Always In Long

Look to B reversal up from early selloff Became Always In Long by close of 2nd bar
