

Consecutive Buy Climaxes

Consecutive B Climaxes: Exhaustion Likely, but MM Up

Very few PBs and all small
Very strong Small PB Bull Trend
Do not sell,
even though possible exhaustion gaps

Consecutive Buy Climaxes: Small PB Bull so Not Climactic

BO bars are not big so not very climactic

Followed by 3 – 5 bar tight TR

Bulls got to rest, avoiding exhaustion

If small PBs, gaps and body gaps, and lack of huge climax bars, then more likely Small PB Bull Trend

Do not sell

Strong BO
on 30 min
8 bull bars

Bull MC in Extreme B Climax: Expect 2 Legs Sideways to Down

Consecutive Buy Climaxes: Expect Trading Range

Series of bull breakouts with bull bars closing near their highs

Consecutive Buy Climaxes

Usually attracts profit takers

Expect minor reversal and Trading Range

Consecutive B Climaxes: Exhaustion Likely, but MM Up

Consecutive B Climaxes: Blow Off Top

Parabolic wedge buy climax

Crash up

Likely exhaustion and end of bull trend

2nd Leg Bull Trap

1st leg up was parabolic wedge top that failed

S below bear bar closing near its L

Higher probability to wait for 2nd signal since strong rally

Every trend bar is a buy climax
Here, consecutive buy climaxes and each one is bigger

After B climax, expect at least 2 legs sideways or down

Here, 3 legs down in tight channel

It was 1st leg down in bigger 2 legs down

Consecutive Buy Climaxes: Strong Reversal Down

Consecutive Buy Climaxes: 2 Big Legs Down

Parabolic wedge

After 3 – 5 Consecutive B Climaxes,

2 legs down likely

Here, very big legs

Consecutive Buy Climaxes on Open: Often Leads to Tight TR

Buy climax usually needs consecutive climaxes or parabolic wedge tops before rally ends
Sell climaxes can reverse from a single climax
Parabolic wedge bottoms are less common than tops

Big bull trend bar or bars mostly closing on high is a buy climax 3 or more consecutive buy climaxes with only 1 – 5 bar pullbacks
usually creates an exhausted trend
Bulls stop buying and wait for a pullback
Most climaxes, especially in 1st hour, lead to TRs, like here
Some lead to a reversal, or reversal after TR

Small PB Bull: Consecutive Buy Climaxes, Then TR

Rally with gaps so was Small PB Bull Trend

Consecutive buy climaxes (series of big bull bars interrupted by brief PBs)

Became consecutive wedge tops (Consecutive Complex Tops)

Then, deep PB and TR day

Consecutive Buy Climaxes : Deep PB Made TR Day Likely

Deep PB
(strong minor reversal) makes TR more likely than continued bull trend

Big bull trend bar closing on its high is a buy climax 3 or more consecutive buy climaxes with only 1 – 5 bar pullbacks
usually creates an exhausted trend
Bulls stop buying and wait for a pullback
Most climaxes lead to TRs, like here
Some lead to a reversal, or reversal after TR
Here, parabolic wedge top led to reversal down